8. Touchable History

In December 1960, Don Sims a renown photographer from Los Angles, caught a Nevada Northern Railway engineer signing in for his shift, in front of the railroad's classic call board. The call board still exists but fell out of use and became a gathering place for stuff. The publication of this photo excited Lennox and his brother Jack to clean the area up.

Left, Lennox and Jack in front of the call board. They took it upon themselves to clean up the area and put the board back into operation.

This is an excellent example of touchable history at the Nevada Northern Railway National Historic Landmark.
